

OFFICE OF SHERIFF OF COUNTY PARTICULARLY IMPORTANT TO VOTERS; NO DEPUTY CAN TAKE PLACE OF SUCH, STATES JUDGE CALVIN S. BOYER

Relates Duties of Said Officer at Annual Meeting of Bucks
County Council of Republican Women in Richboro —
Some Problems Are of A Very Difficult Nature

The second and concluding portion of the address delivered by Judge Calvin S. Boyer of the Bucks County Courts before women assembled for the tenth annual meeting of Bucks County Council of Republican Women in Richboro Wednesday, is here given:

Next is the Clerk of Orphans Court. You no doubt all know that the principal duties of this court is the matter of estates. Estates of dependants and minors; trust estates are handled there. In addition to the matter of estates there are will contests. There is an orphan's case. They take an appeal to probate a will to the Register's office. The Orphans Court judge hears the evidence and decides whether a jury trial is necessary. Adoption proceedings take place in the Orphans' Court, by a recent act of the assembly.

Marriage licenses are also issued by the Clerk of Orphans' Court, which involves a good bit of work, not particularly difficult, although a lot of time is involved in it.

The next office is the one I think is particularly important to voters. I may say as to these other offices, all the work can be done by deputies, if they are experienced and able, they can do it. The work of the clerks of those three courts may be done with very little experience, no training and even without ability, they could handle them all right if they have sense enough to appoint and to keep able clerks and deputies. If a man starts out with good deputies and clerks in most of these offices he can stay home or sit in the office. As a matter of fact many of these officers are practically clerks. Many records must be kept verbatim and the clerks can do it splendidly if they are good penmen. But, the next office I am to mention is different. No deputy can take the place of the Sheriff. In the office of Sheriff there are certain qualifications which are indispensable if he is good. No deputy can take his place, and it is important that the Sheriff have these qualifications.

He should be naturally intelligent, should have at least a fair education and he must be courageous. He should, at the same time, be tactful, handling men quietly, without rubbing them the wrong way and at the same time he should be humane. He must have a big, humane heart because he deals with unfortunate situations again and again. We are fortunate at present, in having that kind of a Sheriff, and we have been fortunate during the 30 years I have been in Doylestown.

The office of Sheriff is a difficult office to handle. There are many difficult problems arising. Many questions, calling for good judgment, cool judgment, calling for intelligent action and prompt action. The Sheriff is in a sense, the arm of the Court. Whenever the Court makes an order or a decree that must be carried out and the Sheriff is the one the Court looks to to carry out that decree or order. I may say now that the matter of issuing writs of execution against properties for the sale of the property, the Sheriff must carry out the writs of execution. There is a general misunderstanding that the Judges of the courts issue these writs of execution. The judges have nothing to do with the issuing of writs, for the sale of real estate or personal property. We get our information in most cases about Sheriff's sales just like every one of you; from the newspapers. That is the first we know about Sheriff's sales. The people think the judges direct the Sheriff's sales. They do theoretically but the courts do not issue any writs. The Prothonotary does that. He signs the writ; he cannot do otherwise. The attorneys file an order and the Prothonotary issues a writ of Fieri Facias. That order is signed by the lawyer; he hands it to the Prothonotary and the Prothonotary fills out a writ of Fieri Facias and signs it. The judges never see it. There is a false belief that the judges can stop these Sheriff's sales. Judges can no more stop these Sheriff's sales than any of you. We have no power to stop a Sheriff's sale except in a particular case where a defendant comes in and asks for a stay of execution, asking that the judgment be opened for some particular case, and it must be a legal reason. It is never a legal reason that the defendant has been unfortunate, or that the defendant does not have the money to pay. That is not a legal reason. The court could not pay the slightest attention to such a petition because in nine out of every ten cases the judgments are always held up because they cannot pay. Of course they would pay if they could. In the very best of times we had Sheriff's sales just the same. Why? Because people couldn't pay. That is the reason we have Sheriff's sales. It is unfortunate, often pitiable, but we cannot stop a Sheriff's sale for that reason and we judges are spoken and written to time and again by kind-hearted people who pity somebody and want to know whether we cannot stop a certain sale. It is beyond our power. We have nothing to do with these sales as judges. Consequently you can learn some of

BRISTOL A. A. PLAYS HIBERNIANS TO TIE

Odd Fellows Keep Record
Clean, Nosing Out
Hulmeville

FINAL SCORE IS 5 TO 4

Bristol A. A. and the Hibernians played to a 5-4 deadlock on Sullivan's field last night in a Lower Bucks County League game. It was the second straight game played by the Bristol A. A. team.

"Eddie" Roe's hitting kept the "Hibs" in the game. Roe socked a double in the first inning with two playmates on base and in the third came through with a triple. The fielding of "Gige" Dougherty also stood out for the "Hibbies."

"Bill" Fine and Gene Lawler were the opposing hurlers. Fine allowed seven hits while Lawler gave up five. In the second inning when Mulholland's cohorts scored four runs, only one hit was made and three errors chalked against the Hibernian team. Fine's support also was ragged.

"Charlie" Ihrig's gloved-hand catch of Dougherty's hard hit liner in the third inning was the fielding gem of the night. The catch robbed Dougherty of a sure hit.

EMILIE, May 5.—The Bristol Odd Fellows remained undefeated in the Lower Bucks County League, nosing out Hulmeville A. A. here last night. Final score was 5-4.

The "Oddies" scored their winning run in the last half of the sixth after Hulmeville had deadlocked the score in their half of the inning by counting twice. To begin this inning Black relieved Watson who was found for four runs in the fifth. Fred Hibbs greeted Black with a triple. Morrell struck out. Afterbach drew four bad ones and took first base. Ashby then won his own game with a hit over second.

TO SIGN BEER BILL

Harrisburg, May 5.—The signing of the beer taxation bill, expected to be performed by Governor Pinchot today, will temporarily disrupt the legal sale of 3.2 percent beer throughout Pennsylvania. These have been issued by the State Department of Revenue, but will not be on sale until the regular opening hour of the banks where they will be sold. The regulatory and licensing act does not take effect until June 1st.

The Revenue Department has provided for stamps sales in one municipality in each of the 67 counties. The county purchasing place for stamps in Bucks County is the Doylestown Trust Company, Doylestown.

CONGREGATION APPROVES PLANS, CHURCH ADDITION

Ground-Breaking Ceremony At Hulmeville M. E. Edifice Next Sunday

SUNDAY SCHOOL ROOM

HULMEVILLE, May 5.—The congregation of the Neshaminy M. E. Church unanimously approved plans for the addition of a Sunday School room to the edifice at a meeting in the church last evening. Some of the laboring work at the construction site will be provided by men of the town who have been receiving assistance through relief agencies.

Plans adopted by the official board were explained to the members attending last evening's meeting, and the vote of approval was unanimous.

By means of a blackboard plans were fully explained by members of the committee in charge, including Jesse C. Everitt, Charles Haefner, and Christian Tomlinson. The room to be erected at the rear of the present edifice will be of frame construction, 34 x 35 feet, with basement of concrete blocks, with the same floor space.

The basement will connect with the basement which is located under the main auditorium, while the upper floor of the new addition will be readily accessible from the present church rooms. The basement will be finished in such manner that the primary department can be comfortably cared for there. A running water supply will also be provided.

Present plans call for the breaking of ground Sunday, May 7th, at 12 o'clock noon, with the pastor, the Rev. T. William Smith, officiating. Work will proceed during the coming week.

Larger quarters have been made necessary owing to gradual and continued increase in number of scholars during the past few years.

BOYS ARE THRILLED "RUNNING" BOROUGH

Mock Session of Council
Proves To Be Lively Affair

ONE "ARREST" IS MADE

Boys ran the borough for an hour yesterday afternoon and from four until five o'clock those chosen for the task had a thrilling 60 minutes.

Meeting in the council chamber, Municipal Building, the youths elected burgess, justice of peace, tax collector and as councilmen were administered the oath of office by Burgess Clifford L. Anderson. The councilmen were seated and the other officials escorted to their respective offices. A mock session of council was then held at which time other borough officials were appointed.

The officials were:

Burgess, Foster Grow; tax collector, Paul Straus; justice of peace, Charles Capella. Councilmen: First ward, Theodore Miko, Vincent Profy, Thomas Profy; second ward, Edward Napoli, Lewis Paone; third ward, Madison Seifert, Jack Ritter, Charles Hughes; fourth ward, Milan Naylor, Headley Warner; fifth ward, Oscar DiLorenzo; sixth ward, Jack Fraiser, Dick Drumm, Peter Hubbs.

John Ritter was chosen as secretary of council.

Milan Naylor was elected president by a majority of one over Thomas Profy who received six votes. Charles Hughes received one vote.

Burgess Anderson after administering the oaths of office turned the meeting over to Dr. J. Fred Wagner who with the assistance of William J. Lefferts, directed the boys in holding a mock session of council.

Before leaving Burgess Anderson presented the boy burgess with a pocket knife, but instructed him not to try it out on the desk in his office.

Vincent Force was chosen chief of police.

In the council meeting Dr. Wagner showed the boys how application for plumber's license is made and the boys went through the entire routine of issuing one to Chauncey E. Stone-back, Sr.

Dr. Wagner addressing the boys told them of the numerous ordinances on the borough statute books and called particular attention to the one prohibiting riding of bicycles on the sidewalks.

Mr. Lefferts gave a practical demonstration of how bills are presented to council voted upon and paid.

During the council session the boys became involved in a lively debate over the removal of trolley tracks on Otter, Mill and Radcliffe streets. The question was brought up in the council session and it was argued pro and con in a manner which reflected credit upon the youths.

Shortly after Chief of Police Vincent Force took office a mock case was presented for his solution. Albert Stowe made complaint against Lawrence Justice of Peace Charles Capella, who at the direction of James Guy, issued a warrant for McGlynn's arrest. Force was given the warrant to serve and placed McGlynn under arrest. A hearing was held before Capella and McGlynn was held in bail but was later released when Evan Vandegriff presented himself as a bondsman and gave $500 bail.

The Sixth Ward junior ball team won the championship yesterday on St. Ann's field.

Sixty-two contestants battled for honors in the jig-saw contest staged in the Montgomery-Ward Building, Mill street, under the direction of David Norman. At least 200 people milled about the room watching the boys solve the puzzles last night.

After a few minutes of trying Francis Grow became disgusted and dropped from the contest. Two other boys becoming discouraged changed puzzles and were disqualified. They were G. McLeary and E. English, Croydon.

The winners were announced as follows:

Junior—Francis McIlvaine, 11, first ward, 18 minutes; second, Arthur Kramers, 11, 6th ward, 28 minutes; third, Bobie Smith, 10, 6th ward, 33 minutes.

Senior—Robert Johnson, 15, Croydon.

PARKLAND, May 5.—The charred and lifeless body of a middle-aged man was found stretched across the bed of the bungalow he occupied, here, one-half hour after the dwelling was discovered afire early this morning.

The victim:

Frederick Engleman, 53, single.

The firemen who gathered from South Langhorne, Hulmeville and Langhorne, to fight the blaze at the four-room frame bungalow, were informed that the place had been occupied and neighbors feared Engleman might be trapped in the blazing structure.

The house was practically entirely destroyed, and it was not until about 3:30 that the body was finally located. The form lay across the bed.

The body was removed to a Langhorne morgue, and will be forwarded to Philadelphia today.

Engleman was a brother-in-law of Joseph McCorkle, of near Fifth street and the Boulevard, Philadelphia. He had been living in the bungalow alone.

No idea as to the origin of the fire could be given this morning by Bucks County Fire Marshal William L. Stackhouse, of Hulmeville, who states there seems to be no evidence of incendiarism.

The loss on building and contents is estimated at $2,000.

A small garage adjoining the building also fell prey to the sparks, but firemen were soon able to extinguish this second blaze.

High School Operetta Well Received First Night

The first presentation of the high school operetta, "The Gypsy Rover" was well received by the large audience which witnessed it last night. The second and final performance will be given tonight.

The play was well presented, and the entire cast took their parts exceptionally well. Alice Ludwig, who played the part of the beautiful Lady Constance, won the audience's admiration from the moment she appeared on the stage with her sweet soprano voice and her winning personality. The Gypsy rover, James Blanche, gave a splendid performance, making good use of his strong efficient voice.

Ralph Cahall's portrayal of a typical English lord with his monocle and his ceaseless "dontaeh knows" was very cleverly done and brought forth many laughs from those in attendance.

The robber scene in the second act with Wayne Fry as Siffo and Pompeo Piazza as Marto was especially entertaining, and because it was so cleverly presented, afforded a great deal of humor. The other talented members of the cast who did outstanding work were: Adele Dowgillo, as Meg; Helen Morganti, as Zara, a gypsy belle; Richard Hubbard as Sir George; Winifred Stauffer, as Nina; William Armstrong, as Jerome; also Dominick Manzo, Oscar Corn, and Frank Parr.

The choruses also presented a skillful performance with their colorful costumes, their fine singing, and their peppy dancing. Both Helen Morganti and Margaret Quinn did some excellent solo dancing.

The scenery and lighting effects provided an exceptionally fine background for such a colorful performance.

The operetta will be repeated tonight at 8:15 p. m. in the high school auditorium. Tickets may be obtained at the door.

AMERICA'S PART

The country will await with interest, probably not unmixed with some anxiety, developments concerning how far the United States will be willing to go in establishing a consultation pact under the Briand-Kellogg anti-war treaty.

Reports out of Washington and the statement of Norman H. Davis before the disarmament conference at Geneva indicate clearly that Mr. Roosevelt is giving consideration to such a proposal. "Our ability to make our collaboration effective," Mr. Davis explained further, "will depend in large part on the measure of disarmament we now may be able to achieve."

It long has been the desire of Europe to get the United States into a consultation pact. France especially having been hopeful of such a result.

No anti-war treaty can be effective without a provision of this kind or some other measure looking to co-operation of the signatories to bring pressure to bear upon a nation which breaks or threatens to break the treaty. Absence of any such provision in connection with the Kellogg treaty is the latter's greatest weakness. Yet, it is a serious question how far the United States should go in tying itself up with Europe in a way that would make it a party to the latter's quarrels and wars. Any consultation pact which did not contemplate effective action—however far this might lead—in preserving the treaty would prove merely a gesture and, therefore, useless.

It was the desire to prevent America from becoming embroiled in Europe's quarrels that kept this country out of the League of Nations. Whether popular sentiment on this question has changed can not be definitely known now, but there seems good reason to doubt if there has been a complete reversal.

Disarmament, war debts, economics and political questions are so intermingled at present in the problems the United States and Europe are trying to solve, it is hard to get a clear perspective of the situation as a whole. There are many pitfalls, and to guard against these in any projected course for the United States should be the chief purpose of those formulating the nation's foreign policies.

The country will remain hopeful that the administration will not lose sight of this important question.

Nothing else increases the value of affection like being alienated.

One trouble seems to be that too many people are above the law and not above lawlessness.

Japan claims she is in China to get back her boycott-lost business. Well a flotilla of battleships can deliver a hot sales talk.

You might call Insull an All-American. Think how many sacrificed themselves to let him reach the goal.

True, America's hard times began in Europe. They began when Europe said: "Let's borrow 10 billion."

Another reason why "artists" are quickly divorced is because no house is big enough for two cases of swell-head.

ability and integrity and also for some of the same qualities with relation to the Sheriff's office, humanity, in helping them to appreciate the misfortunes of those they are called upon to care for and in a humane manner, without being swept to the other extreme in attempting to give these unfortunate, 99 per cent of which never were accustomed to luxuries, of giving them luxuries at the expense of the county.

I hope I have given you a bird's eye view of these offices and the officers' qualifications. I have tried to stress particularly the qualifications of three of these offices, that of the Sheriff, that of the Commissioners and the Poor directors. If I have done so, it may be of some assistance to you when come to have elections, to help determine who are the proper candidates to nominate to office and to elect at the polls.

"MARY FAITH"

by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER XXXIII

Mary Faith said to herself that it wouldn't break her heart if Claire never did come home. It would suit her down to the ground if she never had to see Claire's dazzling smile and restless blue eyes again. All summer she had been dreading Claire's return and the return of all the things that Claire stood for. The card games and the cocktails and the promiscuous kissing that went on in the flat above Hahnorth Park—"the unclean antics of grown-up children," as a brilliant playwright had called such entertainments.

Two nights later Kim telephoned at five o'clock to say that he wouldn't be home for dinner. Some men he knew had asked him to go with them to a clam bake at the Shore Club, he explained.

"No women present," he added, with a laugh.

"In that case, your jealous wife will let you go," Mary Faith answered him cheerfully. "Have a good time, Kim."

She was glad that he was going to the Shore Club. It was fine for a man to spend an evening with other men occasionally—to get their viewpoint on things.

And the Shore Club. It meant something for a man to be invited there. It was a solid sort of institution, where the oldest and best families in the city played golf and danced and gave dinner-parties.

So Mary Faith, who had no social ambitions of her own, was filled with a sense of pride in Kim as she turned away from the telephone that afternoon. He was beginning to know the right sort of people, to go to the right sort of places, to be liked and respected by his business friends.

It was a beautiful afternoon, sunny and breezy. Mary Faith put the baby into his perambulator and started off for a walk through the park. The baby, pink and bright-eyed from his afternoon nap, sat up against the pillows of his little cart and played with a rubber rabbit that Jean Bartlett had brought him.

It was cool and green under the trees. Mary Faith spread a blanket for him near her favorite bench and sat watching him in great contentment while she darned Kim's socks. By the time she had finished them and put them into her mending bag, it was six o'clock and the factory whistles were blowing in the distance.

"Time to start home," she said to the baby. "Time to go home and find the baby's bottle."

Then she decided all at once that she wouldn't go home for dinner. She'd go back to the flat for the bottle and then take the baby to Mrs. Puckett's. It would be nice to show him to her friends.

Mr. McClintock was sitting on the front steps, reading the evening paper when she came within sight of the old red brick building with its shutters and its bay tree and its starched white curtains. Mrs. Puckett was standing in the doorway behind him and she came hurrying down the steps when she saw Mary Faith. She took the baby out of the perambulator, exclaiming over his adorable littleness and his amazing beauty.

"Look at those eyelashes, Mary Faith! If they ain't yours by a T!" she cried. "And look at his little hands and his feet—his little velvet feet!"

She horrified Mary Faith by giving him a crust of bread to chew on when they all went in to dinner.

She served their simple meals as beautifully as a trained waitress could have served them.

"Pshaw, he can't eat it, Mary Faith. He hasn't any teeth," she said. And when Mary Faith wouldn't let him have it, she went upstairs and came back with an old-fashioned ivory teething ring.

"There!" she said to him. "That's all your smart young mother will let you have. But your Aunt Puckett is going to make you a little muslin bag full of raisins when you really begin to cut your teeth."

"I brought up my two little sisters after my mother died," she said to Mary Faith, heaping her plate with baked ham and potato salad and fresh tomatoes in aspic jelly. "They ain't much that I don't know about raising babies. . . . Just remember that, in case you ever need any help with this precious nute!"

Mary Faith smiled at her happily. She would never need help with the baby. She was sure of that, she told herself. And not until long afterward did she realize that she had tucked Mrs. Puckett's words into some pigeonhole of her mind that night, to be taken out later and remembered with relief and gratitude.

It was twilight when she started home, and the baby was asleep on his embroidered pillow. By the time she reached the drug store near her own corner, a familiar figure emerged from the doorway—Kim! He stood there for the moment, and then vanished around the corner. But when she reached the corner, he was not in sight. There was no one in sight, and there was no automobile, either. Nothing but a red tail-light that whisked out of sight at the other end of the street a second after she caught sight of it.

"But that must have been Kim," she thought, "and that must have been his car. What on earth was he doing here?"

The wonder of the thing had barely flicked her mind before it was gone. It couldn't have been Kim, she decided. Kim was at the Shore

Club, twenty miles away. The man she had seen had simply suggested Kim to her because of his height and his white suit.

The flat was dark and silent when she opened the front door. She switched on the lights as she walked in with the sleeping baby in her arms. No, Kim had not been here. There were no cigarette stubs in the ash-trays in the sitting room.

Mary Faith wheeled the baby's bassinet into Mrs. Farrell's bedroom, the largest and coolest room in the flat, and then got into her own bed, taking with her a library book called "A Philosopher Looks at Life."

She took a serious "high-brow" book from the library every now and then. She wanted to know about things—to be able to talk intelligently—to educate herself.

"Kim's college-bred," she had often told herself, "and I'm not. He's a lawyer and he'll keep on going up in the world, and I must keep pace with him. I mustn't let myself turn into a mere housekeeper and mother."

There would come a time, she figured, when Kim and she would have friends who were above the Maldons and their set. And when that time came, she would be ready for it. She would be a wife that any man could be proud of.

Hidden away on the top shelf of the pantry she had a book entitled "Etiquette," and even when she and Kim were alone, she served their simple meals as beautifully as a trained waitress could have served them.

"Some day," she often thought as she went about her work, "the McClintocks are going to ask us to their house for dinner, and we'll have to ask them here. And I'm going to know just how to do everything correctly."

please advise Mrs. Snyder at Glen Lake Farms, Langhorne.

Mrs. John Hart and Mrs. Paul Benetich, who were delegates to the County Federation last Friday, April 28th, at Perkasie, gave very interesting reports of the meeting. Mrs. Hart gave the report of the morning session and Mrs. Benetich the afternoon session.

The speaker at yesterday's meeting was Dr. Charlotte Eastby Graze, sponsor of Temple University's "Better Home Week"; consultant for the Friends Central School of Philadelphia, and psychologist for Sleighton Farms. Her topic was "Intelligent Living."

"Life is a changing thing," stated Dr. Graze in her talk, starting from the infant, she stated the first thing a baby has to do is learn to breathe, then eat and sleep; then to learn to walk, talk and be with people, which is both difficult and emotional. Then comes the school age, of becoming acquainted with others; then the adolescent age; then on to college. After the early adolescent age, then the marriage.

Continuing, Dr. Graze stated that some people at the age of 30 are not adapted to the physical and emotional life any more than a child of 15 or 16. She advised that at 14, a child should leave his home; not necessarily to lose affection and love for his parents, but to enable him to depend upon himself and to think and decide for himself.

"We must not cling to the old things, but get used to the new," stated the speaker. Three rules were outlined by the speaker for intelligent living: (1) To see things as they are; (2) to be free to act and (3) to adjust oneself to all situations.

Make your test of this new fuel TOMORROW

They punished cars and gasolines to bring you better driving

YOU would have seen a strange sight, had you been in a certain part of the Allegheny Mountains last summer. A score of noted engineers . . . representing leading automobile and refining companies . . . were there conducting some of the most grueling tests of cars and gasolines ever devised. And they learned what actually goes on inside an engine.

ATLANTIC engineers participated. Since August, they have been carrying on the research themselves, utilizing the important discoveries which were made. And they have succeeded in developing a NEW WHITE FLASH which they sincerely believe to be better on every point than any product ever offered at or near its price!

We don't want you to take our word about the NEW WHITE FLASH. Or even the word of your friends.

Make your own test! That's the way to convince yourself there really is something new under the hood.

Drive to the nearest ATLANTIC pump and fill your tank to the brim. Then swing into action. Test it for power . . . for flashing pick-up . . . for smoothness of operation . . . for mileage. See how your engine warms-up in one-third the time!

This new fuel will not only give you the greatest driving you've ever known . . . it will save you many dollars, at a time when every dollar counts.

Test it every way you know, and you'll soon be telling your friends: "Try that NEW WHITE FLASH! It is POWERFULLY BETTER."
